HOUSEKEEPING AROUND HEAVY EQUIPMENT

Keeping large earth moving equipment running and fully operational is vital to the success of any company. Equipment brakes and tires, horns and back-up alarms must all work. But through all this hustle lets not overlook the smaller just as important things such as housekeeping.

This very expensive accident is just one example. A mechanic suffered a ruptured disc when he slipped on some oil that had leaked out of the engine of a roller compactor that was being worked on in a shop. He knew about the oil spill as it was obvious to everyone, but was too busy to drop some absorbent material down on the spill. He figured that he would get to it at the end of the day, but slipped on the oil before then. He landed on his butt rupturing a disk, resulting in surgery to his back.

Most workers are aware of the dangers of falling from heights, but many don't realize more money is lost or spent on accidents and falls from ground level. Don't underestimate the importance of this often overlooked safety violation.
